INQUEST IS CONCLUDED

Federico Calabrese Came to His Death By Suffocation or Burning

The inquest into the cause of the death of Federico Calabrese was resumed at the Blairmore police barracks on Tuesday before Coroner Pinkney. The following jury was present: H. E. Lyon, chairman; H. G. Bigelow, L. Dutil, C. E. Hiscock, D. A. Sinclair, W. J. Bartlett and J. G. Smith.

The following witnesses were heard: John Smallwood, Dr. A. H. Baker, J. B. Sweetland, Marion Brown, David Fraser, A. A. Sparks, Mrs. Cardinals, C. Chestnut, F. W. Cardinals, J. R. Irwin, Alex. Kalil and Ellis Ryan. The hearing of evidence in connection with the fire occupied the time of the court from 10 a.m. to midnight, when the jury set to arrive at a verdict. Nothing of an exciting nature was produced in evidence and no clue could be found to attach to the origin of the outbreak. After about an hour's consideration, the jury through their foreman, returned the following verdict:

"That we, the jury, charged to inquire into the death and by what means Federico Calabrese came to his death, find as follows: That the said Federico Calabrese came to his death by being burned or suffocated in the Cosmopolitan hotel on the night of Monday, March 25th, 1912.

That the fire which mysteriously originated in the store known as Kalil Brothers caused the burning of the said Cosmopolitan hotel and other buildings."

Police Unable to Locate Fugitive

Evidence was obtained by the mounted police Tuesday that indicates that Mike Phillips, who it is alleged, murdered his wife at Pakan, 60 miles northwest of Edmonton, last week is within a few miles of the house where the killing took place, and that he is being furnished food by some of his fellow countrymen.

If the men who are alleged to be furnishing the fugitive with food can be apprehended the authorities will not deal gently with them, as sufficient difficulty is being experienced by the police in getting the man cornered without the intervention of outside parties, who attempt to hinder them.

An effort is being made by Major Cuthbert, officer commanding the local detachment, to have a reward offered for Phillips, who is sufficiently large to increase the size of the posse in pursuit of the fugitive.

Toronto Glee Club

On Friday night of this week the people of Blairmore will have the privilege of hearing a big musical attraction at popular prices without going to the large cities. The Toronto Glee Club headed by the famous basso-cantante will give one concert in Blairmore Opera House. The name of Ruthven MacDonald alone should be sufficient to pack the place to the doors.

The programme is a popular one arranged to suit all tastes, an abundance of good, wholesome humor being introduced to add variety.

Popular prices will prevail, no seat being higher than 75 cents.

Single Tax in Alberta.

With forty incorporated towns in Alberta adopting the system of single tax, it is only natural that this question is being widely discussed at present, and the good features of the system, talked of in the towns in question and brought into the families of the particular ratepayers.

Single tax is applied to a tax which is imposed on land alone, and not on improvements of any kind. Land value in towns or cities is the result of location entirely and the effort of others, who make the particular locality more valuable. If a railroad passes through a community, prices go up and, from the labor and money of others, individual holdings take on an increased value. No effort has been made on the part of the owner, no credit is due him, yet, he reaps the benefit of another's effort. Single tax is intended to remedy and properly adjust this condition of affairs.

The landlord in every instance has to shoulder the burden of any additional tax which may be imposed on his property—in no case must the tenant, who is already paying the limit of an exorbitant rent, be compelled to share in the tax on increased value of land.

Speculation in Western real estate is quoted as the most injurious of speculation known. The influence of keeping back any inclination for development and industrial advantage must be considered nothing short of treacherous. Society is thereby robbed of at least one of the most essential elements in production. Idle workers is an unavoidable result; poverty stricken communities are overburdened and hard times in evidence. The profits made in land speculation do nothing more than lower the wages of productive labor, for it is a non-productive operation on the part of the speculators.

An instance can be cited in almost any Western town, where the brains and energy of others tend to increase the price of their property, while the particular owner exert absolutely no effort. Property in this town is held by many outsiders, who depend entirely on the ability of citizens, to increase the price of their property. On this basis their tax will in future be estimated and they will be compelled to pay their share of the toll.

Lloydminster is situated to the north of us, one half of the town being in Alberta and the other portion in Saskatchewan. Alberta adopts the single tax, former valuation is imposed in Saskatchewan. Note the results. New industries are started in the Alberta portion of the town. This section booms, while the other is lagging. Merchants have moved from the Saskatchewan section and prefer to pay taxes on laid off, rather than on stores and stock.

In every section of Alberta, where this system has been adopted, we find an entire change from the old. Wages are better, the eight hour working prevails and conditions are markedly superior. But these are the conditions that should prevail. The productiveness of the country is in no way affected by real estate and land speculation, but rather is retarded and hindered.

—Wainwright Star.

The programme is a popular one arranged to suit all tastes, an abundance of good, wholesome humor being introduced to add variety.

Popular prices will prevail, no seat being higher than 75 cents.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE

Matter of Connecting Blairmore and The South Fork by Wagon Road Revived

The regular monthly meeting of the Blairmore Board of Trade was held on Monday evening, the following members being present: D. A. Sinclair, president; T. B. George, secretary-treasurer; L. Dutil, J. A. McDonald, J. G. Smith, H. H. Tait, L. Roberts, W. A. Malcolm, C. J. Pegg, H. G. Bigelow and W. J. Bartlett.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted.

Communication from George Henderson Co., of Hamilton, Ont., asking for information regarding resources and feasibility of conducting machine shops, foundry, etc., in this section, was read, and secretary was instructed to write and furnish the necessary information.

Another communication was received from the Western Canadian Fire Underwriter's Association of Winnipeg in reply to a recent letter from the Board asking what would be necessary on part of town fire protection service to ensure a reduction of insurance rates. It was recommended therein that the town adopt a combination chemical engine and hose wagon capable of handling one thousand feet of hose, a fire hall with a drying tower fifty-five feet in height, two resident firemen and twenty-five of a volunteer brigade, etc.

The proposition of Louis C. Gales was read, and upon vote Mr. Gales was elected a member of the Board.

McDonald-Roberts—That correspondence from fire insurance underwriters be handed over to the town council for their consideration. Carried.

One "wee" account was read and ordered referred to finance committee for their approval.

No other business, the Board adjourned at 9:15.

PAINTING WINONA

It Drove the Man She Loved to Declare Himself.

By ETHEL HARRINGTON.

Against the autumnal yellow, and crimson glory of the maples the girl's golden hair and dull red dress made a harmonious picture. Whifred Clay, artist, brought his wheel to a sudden stop, wondering if he had ever seen anything more beautiful before. Silently it was toward this that he had been journeying, this wonderful breathing picture. Already he mentally planned the blendings of madder and lakes, of chrome and yellow, to reproduce the charm as, steadyng his wheel against a rock, he climbed the bank.

"I can get along places near by where I can put in a few days," he inquired, standing bareheaded before the vision.

"Folks sometimes stay at the farm-houses."

"You particularly recommend—"

"None," was the laconic answer. The young fellow laughed, noting the discontent that dimmed the girl's real beauty. "How about that one?" indicating a red chimney that showed among the trees.

"I live there. It's no worse than the rest."

"It has attractions that the others lack," he declared gallantly, but the compliment flew wide of its aim. "Will you accompany me to present my card?"

Silently the girl acquiesced, keeping a little in advance; then, suddenly waiting for him to join her, she began to walk rapidly. Her eyes never wavered from the advancing figure of the farmer, though she was accompanied by a switch lashed mostly at the goldenrod and passed without a word, the rising color above the loose collar alone betraying his consciousness of their presence after he had gone the girl again behind her back.

She left the arbor on the wide porch and sent her mother to interview the stranger. Clay promptly accepted the terms and was soon smoking in home-like ease, wondering how he might persuade the girl to let him paint her, his fingers already itching to be at work.

During supper, which he shared with the family, Clay endeavored to draw the girl into conversation, but she repelled such advances with monkey-lashes. One of her brothers chaffed her on her humor, arousing her to sharp retort; whereat he laughed merrily.

"Fortune's sordid's temper. Funny how some folks can't stand good luck."

Later Clay sat by himself, leaning back in the chair where the vines still clung. "I congratulate you on being an heiress. Independence is not the least gift that riches confer."

The girl raised her head rebelliously. "Why should I be given all her money? I don't want it. I hardly ever saw her and cared less. What right had she to spoil my life?" Her voice vibrated with resentment, and a low whistle escaped Clay.

"There is no time to view to take. If you are in trouble perhaps I can help you. I'd like to try."

Winona shook her head. "Guess no one can."

"What about the fellow we saw?" A chance shot, but it made the color surge painfully to the girl's face, though she kept silent.

"I stayed over to paint a picture," proceeded the artist, abruptly changing topic. "I'm sorry to say for the riotous spender of a New England fall, and—I want you in the shadow of the maples—just as you were today."

"If it depends on me you may as well give up your picture."

"I'll do what I can to help you deal to me."

"Don't hold with such," returned the girl indifferently and went indoors. Musing, Clay continued to pull at his brier. It took a good deal to discourage him. The subject was an inspiration, though he had apparently accepted. Did Winona care? Well, she supposed that Winona thought she did, but she was young enough to have a dozen fancies before coming into control of her money. It was her duty to make well and help her brothers and sisters.

"I told you are not ambitious," remarked Clay that evening, causing Winona to flounce up to sit alone. "I want nothing but to sit alone. In the moonlight, I'd give it to you, to any one who'd go away and never let me hear of it again." Her voice choked suddenly, and, covering her face, she sobbed with an abandon and passion that Clay never had seen before.

He felt uncomfortable, like all men when confronted with women's tears. He wanted to help her. Above all things he wanted his picture. Impulsively he whispered a suggestion, a hint for their mutual happiness. At first he made no sign of having heard, but little by little she grew calm and as he finished caught eagerly at his hands. "You are right, of course!" she cried. "Who ever was anything but moping?"

"I'll paint the picture for you in mediation. You're painting with me, the picture's worth it," was his verdict. From that night the girl's demeanor changed. During the long autumn days posed for the painter beneath the maples and chanted gayly with him at the piano. In the pastures, too, the girl's face was his desire, and the sweet companionship caused the memory of a certain compact to dim.

Meanwhile the picture grew, and Clay knew it was the best he ever had painted. The girl's face was his desire, and the sweet companionship caused the memory of a certain compact to dim.

Each day the young farmer passed and repassed, and the more depressed he seemed. Finally Winona's face was his desire, and the sweet companionship caused the memory of a certain compact to dim.

One morning Clay was painting finishing touches on the foliage when a shadow darkened his canvas. Glancing up, expecting Winona, who was to join him, he encountered the angry gaze of Keith Adams. For a moment silence reigned; then all the pent-up gloom and rage broke forth in the lover.

"How dare you paint her, making her name and face alike common?"

"We're you? Are you angry?" asked Clay. "I speak a man to man." replied the other. "I speak a man to man," Keith repeated; then all the pent-up gloom and rage broke forth in the lover.

"How dare you paint her, making her name and face alike common?"

"We're you? Are you angry?" asked Clay.

"Do you love her?" demanded Keith. "Adams! Are you going to marry her?"

"I'm not a man to marry," replied the other. "I speak a man to man."

"Silently the girl acquiesced, keeping a little in advance; then, suddenly waiting for him to join her, she began to walk rapidly. Her eyes never wavered from the advancing figure of the farmer, though she was accompanied by a switch lashed mostly at the goldenrod and passed without a word, the rising color above the loose collar alone betraying his consciousness of their presence after he had gone the girl again behind her back.

"Oo-oo," said the good clothes man, "I am surprised, almost grieved, to find that one who has such a reputation for wisdom as you should pay so much attention to his clothes. You are as immature and as nobody as a young "And why not?" asked the elder man.

"Why not, indeed?" rejoined the young man. "I am afraid I cannot explain. Many people have told me it is foolish to pay so much attention to clothes. That is all I know."

"It is a common error," spoke the old man. "But it is nevertheless an error, and one which once possessed me. When I was young as you are I was attracted by the external things only, and of these external things clothes were the chief."

EDITORIAL NOTES

A Joyful Easter.

March went out like a lamb—calm and gentle. A real lamb!

With the month of April comes the open spring, and with the latter begins the great works for The Pass that have been in planning during the dull hours of the wintermonths. Another few weeks will see the commencement of the greatest industrial boom and development in our history, and the modernism of these young towns will begin to further attract the interest of the outside world and interest the citizens to the fact that this "burg" is to be no mean place of habitation after all.

Western Canada Trade Gazette

The Western Canada Trade Gazette in its current issue has further particulars of the alleged combine among the wholesale fruit and produce merchants of that city, a subject in which the merchants in all surrounding towns and cities are interested, since they would be affected by any understanding on the part of the wholesalers regarding prices.

The retailers of Calgary have taken a hand in the matter, and after holding a number of meetings and discussing the question thoroughly, they decided by resolution to give their support to the one known independent company. It is also understood that the California Fruit Exchange, fighting the alleged combine, is the latest development in the situation given in the April 1st issue, which contains a number of articles as well as more than ordinary interest to the Western Retailers.

Lacombe to be Heard From

Lacombe, Alta.—A vigorous publicity campaign will shortly be in full swing at this point, backed by the newly organized Industrial Bureau of which every prominent business man in the city is a member. A publicity commissioner will be appointed at once, and a liberal appropriation is being arranged for with a view to making the campaign a success from the start. The advance guard of home-seekers is now beginning to arrive from the States and the Old Country, and all indications point to a season of exceptional activity in every line of business. Very extensive construction work is planned for this section by both the G.T.P.R. and C.P.R. during the coming season. This district has recently been attracting considerable favorable attention for its high-grade cattle and live stock, and the dairy industry is being steadily developed. Such breeds as the Shorthorn, Hereford, Angus and Galloway all flourish in the vicinity, as a result of the excellent fodder and luxuriant pastures; while the water supply is pure and plentiful, and the climate is relatively mild. Lacombe-bred cattle have in the past taken many prizes at Western stock fairs.

Lake City

Is the name of the Western Terminal Point of the proposed Crow's Nest Pass Electric Railway and is already tapped by the Pass line of the C. P. R., while the G. N. R. has already approached to within a few score of miles and must eventually pass through this admirably located town.

Lake City

Is located by the shore of Cro's Nest Lake, only a few miles east of the provincial boundary between Alberta and British Columbia, and just north of the international line. In reality, it is at the top of Canada, where the majestic Rockies tower in serene magnificence over great chasms and numerous fiords, reflecting their presence on the waters of this beautiful lake. Here also are afforded the very best tasks for the daring mountain climber and for huntsman who desires to outrival the quiet ways of the Rocky Mountain goat, sheep, deer or elk, which are the monarchy thereon. In close proximity are numerous timber, mineral and fuel resources, development of which is now in its initial stages. These resources include gold quartz, coal, iron and pulp wood.

Crow's Nest Lake has long been looked upon with promise as an admirable location for health and tourist resorts, and but now this promise is being realized. Plans for hotels, etc. are being arranged, as well as boat houses, and the most modern pleasure yachts will soon glide over the surface of this beautiful lake.

But a few weeks ago lots were placed on the market, and the agents have had their hands full attending to purchasers. Prices run from $150 up. For further particulars apply to the agents:

A QUEELESS CHINESE TOWN

How Soldiers at the Gates of Kashin Enforced Magistrate's Orders

A short time ago our Pen Fu ordered every man's queue cut off. Many did not do so, and the other men were opposed. Also some classes. So the magistrate wrote a conciliatory proclamation, delaying the time a few days. Then he resolved to make no more opposition, and a great gathering of Chinese of all sorts, especially the soldiers at the Kashin Fy Seliang.

The only requirement for entrance was a "queue-head." About 1,000 were present. The Pen Fu or his chief was to be before the Chinese and then gave an account of the history of the Kui-mining movement in Kashin. One of the most interesting parts of the speech was the preparation of the volunteers of a number of good presents, from rice in quantity to dressed pigs and ducks, and so on, for the soldiers for their faithfulness to the cause and a mark of the respect and sympathy of the people who were in and around Kashin.

But all the above methods failed to secure the shopman's queues and also those of many other people. Finally the Pen Fu, after a day and night, claimed that every man not having his queues cut off by the set time would be compelled to cut the badge of March 1st, and to leave the place to the wane basket.

So in due season soldiers were stationed at the gate ready to enforce it. Many were the howls of some of whose dignity, in their estimation, was thus lost forever. The writer passed along the street recently to compare the same single queue. So the Pen Fu has proved his words.

There is a wild enthusiasm for fine hats, overcoat, cloth and everything of this nature. A good tailor might make a good thing of it here.

Why he Asked

They were on their wedding tour, and imagined that every civility given to them was a new condition of servitude.

Having stopped off at a way station, the bridegroom was approached by the station master, who said:

"Are you going to take the next train?"

"It's none of your business," retorted the bridegroom, as he guided the bride up the platform, where they completed each other over the completion of some of the novel.

Onward they went, with its vapor curling from afar. It was the last to their destination that day—an express.

Nearer and nearer it came at full speed, and a moment it whizzed past and was gone.

"Why in thunder didn't that train stop?" yelled the bridegroom.

"Cos you said 'twarn't fit of my blamin' to have to signal if that train's to stop!"

An Anniversary of the Handkerchief

A certain anniversary had fallen on the 2nd of January, has passed unobserved. It is the anniversary of the introduction of the pocket-handkerchief in the form we know it. In early times, well into the period of the French Revolution, the handkerchief was of various shapes, such as square, having its own style.

Mr. George Ansdell of the British Anti-tobacco remarked that it would be an improvement if handkerchiefs were made square. Louis XVI adopted his suggestion, and in 1789 it is recorded in the following decree: "The length of handkerchiefs manufactured in this kingdom shall not exceed one square yard."

The revolutionists distributed everything that savored of royalty, yet they did not interfere with this decree.

Strikes During January 1912

According to the record maintained in the Department of Labor January was a favorable month from the standpoint of industrial unrest. There were nine disputes of substance in none of which were over 500 men involved. About 1,100 employees and twenty firms altogether were involved in these disputes. The loss in time was reckoned at about 13,000 hours per day, or two and one-half hours half the working days lost in the preceding month. The most important dispute was a lockout of plasterers at Winnipeg, Manitoba. Sixty-four of the disputes had been settled, leaving only two in existence at the end of the month named—a strike of lumbermen in British Columbia and the lockout of plasters at Winnipeg, Manitoba, above mentioned. The latter, however, has since terminated.

Honeysuckle

Application for employment was recently made to a St. Louis business man by a young man from the region of the Mississippi. The Louisville man was favorably impressed by the stranger, but as no references were offered determined to hold an interview. After the interview he could personally look into the young man's antecedents, which he could do when next he visited that part of the country. The Louisville man was not long before the opportunity was afforded. The Louisville man sought out the sheriff of the young man's county and asked:

"Did you know Bill Sarks?"

"Shore, I know him."

"What kind of a man is he?"

"Pretty bad."

"Is he honest?"

"Honest? Shore, why, he's been arrested three times for stealin' and acquitted each time."

G.T.C. Luxurious Tourist Cars

The first of five new tourist cars supplied for the approval of the Grand Car and Foundry Co. was on exhibition recently at the Bonaventure Station, Montreal, and declared by the manufacturer to be the most sumptuous of its type ever turned out, but in many respects the equal of a standard Pullman car. Specified as being built of mahogany and painted the car is as attractive in appearance from the outside as it is from within, where the finish throughout is of maple wood. The interior is a large room and lavatory equipped with mitchene wash stands, then comes the kitchen with Kelvinator refrigerator, cooking coil. The main body of the car has a seating and sleeping capacity of fifty-six persons. In front is a linen cupboard and the ladies lavatory, which is a separate room. The upholstery is of "Pegamoid" or imitation leather throughout and the floor covering of linoleum is laid in a diamond pattern.

The light is supplied by the "inc." gas system and electricity, and the heat by the gold Dunhill coil heater. The car is 24 feet long. Altogether it can seat 74 persons. Altogether it can be said with perfect truth, that the new-comer to Canada, no matter what his means, is in a position to travel in as far as the Grand Trunk Pacific is concerned than were the wealthiest travellers not so many years ago.

It is a fact that the Grand Trunk Pacific is concerned than were the wealthiest travellers not so many years ago.

LA GRIPPE'S VICTIMS

Left Weak, Miserable and Peaty Disease in Many Forms.

One of the most treacherous diseases afflicting the people of Canada this winter month is "la grippe." It is a grippe, but it is a very variable and a complication of troubles. It tortures its victims with alternate fever and chills, headaches and pains, and it leads the victim to prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, and even consumption. Instead the deadly after-effects of a grippe may leave the sick to ravage the body.

THE TALE OF THE SARDINE

Go Through Forty-two Processes Before the Salmon Is Real.

More than 400 families with their little sardines as they come to the table nestled in their bed of olive oil, and it is interesting to follow the various steps through which they are put before they reach our homes. Amidst the magnificent scenery of the Norwegian coast, in the ice-cold waters of the North Atlantic, the feeding grounds of the sardine. During the sunny summer days, from July to September, huge shoals of these crowd the waters, and the fisherman begins his work of the sardine. During the first few days, the fish are scattered over a wide area, and the sardine is not yet large enough to be caught in nets. The fisherman know so well that the sardines are coming and keep a sharp watch for the silvery sheen and rippling surface of the water, and when the approach of the little fishes in their millions. From faraway Stavanger come the fishermen, racing over the waves in motor boats, with lightning quickness and precision, immense numbers of the fish are surrounded by strong nets and then hauled ashore. Skilfully the net that nets draw closer and closer, the heavy glittering mass becomes more compact, and in a comparatively small space of time the fish are brought for the purpose are filled with fish and hurried away to town.

Stavanger is now a small fishing port, but now the centre of the Norwegian cannery industry—all is bustle and excitement, the arrival of the little bunches. After a long fast, the fisherman comes to the sorting rooms to be graded according to size, prepared for the market. Hundreds of young Norwegian girls, in their neat, pictureque garb, bright and fresh-looking, in their snow-white aprons, dexterously thread the fish on long wires, which are full when placed across wooden frames and cured small oaks of bark are kept burning continuously, throwing off a rich fragrance. The fish are then taken to the curing chamber, the door of which is hung on frames in every part of the room, and in the space of about ten minutes the bright gill of the fish is changed to a dull bronze as they are cured by the atmosphere of the room. As soon as the curing is completed, the fish are hurried off to another room by girls on the canning floors.

Here heads tail, fins are removed, the fish are packed carefully and neatly in thin plaid ready to receive them. Each tin is so small as to contain six fish, each in its own olive oil, the purist of fourteen grades. Then the top is placed in position ready to be sealed. The seal is perfect, the fish is hermetically sealed. The man with the forces, "there wouldn't be a dental college in all the world if it wasn't for the teeth." The fish is then placed in a special seal the tins. The package is now ready for the great hullers in which the fish are cooked, they are then taken to the large barrels, and lowered into the boiler, which are then closed and treated with high pressure steam for about two hours. At the end of this period they are moved to the cooling-room to be cleaned and examined, and finally to be labelled, reflecting an indication of the marvellous amount of detail which has to be considered in order to maintain perfection and make the product packable. The time of handling to the final packing for export, the sardine passes through no less than forty-two processes, and the greater the care and carefulness of the curing depends the flavor and quality of the finished product. Moreover it is of great importance that the sardine should be caught only during the proper season.

The Secret of Power

Take from a man every gift but sincerity; let him be blind and deaf and lame, let him sit in a speechless lack education and good manners; handicap him as you please so you leave him sincerity and he will conquer the world. The secret of his work will endure. The word, which is always looking for the real thing, will gladly overlook all infelicities in every relation of humanity, and see only the good. The taleman who does not himself believe in the merit of his goods will generally be a failure. The man who is not sincere about himself and other people must end as he has, in fact, begun, by making a fool of himself. The clergyman who represents any cause, who does not appear need look no further to explain empty words. There is no virtue that more men believe in and fewer men practice.

Mr. MacDonald is known in the East where there were announced of his name means a crowded house in the cities of the United States and Calgary. In securing this attraction Capt. Bebe's object was not a money making scheme but to give the people of the town a chance of hearing something out of the ordinary without going elsewhere. The Glee Club's appearance in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Brandon, Edmonton and Calgary caused the greatest furor in musical circles and crowded houses greeted them in every city. It is to be hoped the people of Blairmore will give them a rousing house, as arrangements have been made by which no girl will be more than 75 cents.

Camp For Teachers

A six week's course in Physical and Military Training for Teachers will be given in Calgary this year beginning during the first week of July.

In order that the teachers will have the opportunity of observing the cadet corps in training the cadets of the district will also go into camp for a few days during the first week of the teacher's course.

The teachers will receive pay at the rate of $1.00 per day and in addition will receive rations at the regular rate and quantity as is supplied to the troops under canvas. Formerly a subsistence allowance of $1.00 per day was given, but this year the rations will be allowed in lieu of the monetary allowance. The usual blankets will be provided but it will be optional with teachers to provide coats for themselves.

As the number is strictly limited to fifty teachers, those desirous of taking advantage of the course should forward their applications immediately, either to Col. E. A. Crankshaw, district officer commanding at Calgary, or to D. S. MacKenzie, deputy minister of education, Edmonton.

License Vendors of Small Wares

An amendment to the Children's Protection Act provides for the licensing of all vendors of newspapers, small wares and of boot-blacks. The amendment, as set forth, states that no municipality shall grant a license to any child whose age does not exceed twelve years, nor to any female child the municipality is not allowed to grant a license to any child under the apparent age of fourteen years, unless such child shall present authority in writing from its parent or guardian.

Medal badges should be issued bearing the number of the license issued, and it becomes the duty of police officers of the city, or in cases where a special children's officer is employed, of that particular officer, to see that the news vendors wear their badge upon a conspicuous place on their clothing.

Provision is made whereby justice of the peace or magistrates may impose a fine, not exceeding $5.00 and costs, for any one who violates the conditions of the Act.
